MOTOR VEHICLES KILL NINE IN MAINE LAST MONTH

During the month of January, nine motor vehicle accidents claimed the lives of ten people in Maine. The ten fatalities equaled exactly the previous three-year average of ten deaths for the first month of the year. However it was a big improvement over last year when 17 persons died in January traffic accidents.

Three youngsters died as a result of sliding accidents, the outstanding cause of fatalities for the month. An average of five sliding deaths each year should be sufficient warning to each parent. DON'T LET YOUR YOUNGSTER BE ONE OF THE TWO EXPECTED SLIDING VICTIMS IN FEBRUARY!

January was the first month in two years in which the use of liquor was not associated with a traffic death.

In addition to the sliding victims, January's fatalities included three passengers, three pedestrians, and one driver.

Aroostook County had three deaths; Androscoggin and Kennebec two each; with one for Oxford, Penobscot and Washington County. Six deaths occurred in rural areas; four were killed in urban sections.

This, Maine moves ten closer to its 3,000th motor vehicle fatality since 1935. At the beginning of February, the total was 2,950. What can we do to postpone the recording of that 3,000th death?

The Division of Traffic & Safety offers this suggestion: "KNOW AND OBEY TRAFFIC LAWS." Traffic laws are made to protect life and property and to facilitate the movement of traffic. Strict observance of these laws is a necessity. If we are to enjoy any degree of security on our streets and highways, looking out for safety isn't all up to the other fellow. Each of us must accept his share of the responsibility. Not a few not just most of us but ALL of us must KNOW traffic laws and DRIVE by them. Lt. John deWinter, Director, Division of Traffic & Safety, Maine State Police

Prisoner of War Deadline For Claims is March 31

Fred W. Rowell, State Director of Veterans Affairs, calls the attention of all ex-prisoners of war, all civilian internees and their dependents to the fact that the deadline for filing claims with the War Claims Commission is March 31, 1952.

Public Law 16 of the 82nd Congress, extended the original date from March 1, 1951 to March 31, 1952. Mr. Rowell states that the War Claims Commission in Washington strongly urges all living ex-P.O.W.s, all American civilian internees, and the dependents of those who became deceased, to make sure that they file a claim before that date, if they have not already done so.

Since the passing of the War Claims Act of 1948, 643 Maine ex-P.O.W.s and their dependents have been certified for payments totaling $167,650.99. It is felt that most of Maine's eligible claimants have already made application for this benefit, but there are still several thousand, nationwide, who have not applied.

Applications blanks for ex-P.O.W.s, civilian internees and their dependents, who have not yet applied for benefits, may be obtained from any of the field offices of the Division of Veterans Affairs, as well as from local chapters of most of the veterans' service organizations. The Division of Veterans Affairs has offices located in Augusta, Bangor, Caribou, Lewiston, Machias, Rockland and Portland. The field representatives of this Division stand ready to assist any applicant in filling out the forms.

GOULD DROPS FINALE TO UNDEFEATED GORHAM, N. H.

Playing one of their better games of the year, Gould Academy still went down to defeat at the hands of a tall sharp-shooting Gorham five which is undefeated in 20 games. They are one of the favored teams in the New Hampshire state tournament.

Coach Anderson was especially pleased with the fine performances given by Paul Fossett and Gene White who were brought up from the J.V.s to help out on Gould's crippled team. Fossett was high scorer for the night with 24 points while White played excellent ball as a guard. Rolfe also played well, being especially effective off the board and contributed 13 points.

Bullington and Perkins towering forward and center of Gorham, both scored 23 points while Ledger chipped in with 11. The 74-50 high scoring game was an exciting one that kept the fans in an uproar. The Gould J.V.s played excellent ball in gaining revenge for a 29-39 licking received at Bethel earlier in the season. Lee Merrill with 23 points and Butler with 18 collected 41 of the understudies 57 points. Malloy with 14 points contributed most towards Gorham's 48.

This completes Gould 1952 schedule as the remaining game with Wilton Academy was canceled as Wilton was picked for the Western Maine Tourney.

Second Storm in Week Plugs Many Roads

Before all roads were well opened following the snowfall of Monday, Feb. 11, and several days of high winds, another storm bringing some 20 inches nearly paralyzed travel and industry the first of the week. The snowstorm was a 24-hour event starting Sunday forenoon, and communities around here suffered less than many others.

Schools were closed Monday and Tuesday. The Monday morning west bound passenger train was delayed until evening. Mill yards were snowed under. The high snow banks allow so little space for the heavy snowfall that in many places two-way traffic is impossible as yet. Only a few places remain unopened in Bethel's many miles of roads; this Thursday morning as another snowstorm seems to be under way.

In nearby areas motorists were stranded and along the Maine coast the snow was more troublesome. Maine cities were worse off than rural communities as many old streets were completely closed. On Monday no daily newspapers, bakery or oil trucks arrived in town.

TRAVEL TROUBLE

High snow banks and narrowed roads were a cause for several mishaps during the week. The following occurred on Friday.

A Speedway trailer truck, bound from Montreal to New Brunswick, left the highway in Gilead and plunged down a steep bank without overturning. The accident occurred at the junction of the Bag Road and Route 2 when the driver successfully avoided collision with a snow plow driven by Leland MacLean, Gilead road commissioner. The trailer bore a 13 ton load of glass batteries and yeast. The heavy load was pulled back to the highway by three tractors.

A car driven by Edward Hastings of East Bethel and a truck driven by Walter Appleby of West Paris collided on the Lebe Mill, East Bethel road. The Lebe injury was a shaking up and bruise received by Hastings and his mother, Mrs. Ruth Hastings.

The car of Robert Billings, parked at his Railroad Street driveway was struck by a Berlin, N. H. truck which swerved to avoid a collision. Estimated damage was $200.

THE LEADING CITIZENS

When a nation has a sound economic system, with incentive, and freedom such as we have in the United States, there still may be some backward areas where there is lack of leadership and vision and where improvement in the standard of living for the whole population drags very slowly. Nobody has been starving of course; but there has been a noticeable lag in progress and general betterment in some few areas.

In my journeys through our country I've seen some of slow-to-progress areas. This column today is a report of what has happened to one of them. The report reflects great credit on 1900 Arkansas business and professional men who have provided leadership and vision and a willingness to spend their energies and resources for the common good.

A Community Awakens

A few years ago I visited a small city in Arkansas and found its economic life to be standing still—making no visible progress. The leading hotel had frayed carpets on the lobby floor. The main street buildings were drooping-looking and in need of paint, many dwellings were old and dilapidated. It seemed to me that even the people themselves moved about the streets listlessly. There appeared to be no pride, no ambition present.

Today this little Arkansas city which was fast asleep a few years ago is wide awake and soundly prosperous, living standards throughout the population are high, opportunities are wide open for everybody. It is probably the fastest growing community in the South. You immediately ask: "What has happened?" The answer is that its business and professional men were awakened and provided local civic action by an organization called "The Arkansas Economic Council." In two years of existence the Council has proved to the whole state that people can "pull themselves up by their own bootstraps." New Wealth Wanted.

The Council was headed by a handful of public-spirited business men. The primary purpose was to get new manufacturing plants started to boost the production of wealth in Arkansas. Locally financed home industries to process local raw materials and large out-of-state factories with big payrolls. The handful of leaders went over the state highlighting business men in the 70 counties. Soon they had enlisted 1,000 men. A technical staff was employed and a resource inventory was made in every county.

The business men in each community then held "Build Your Own Home Town" plans. All kinds of people attended—from women's clubs, the schools, the churches from all phases of the community. Local projects were scheduled on a priority basis and the citizens literally rolled up their sleeves and went to work. New industries began to pop up all over the state. New parks and playgrounds appeared, school and health facilities were expanded and improved, downtown areas were modernized, new job opportunities opened up in more than the Arkansas communities.

A Great Achievement

The Council has just held its annual statewide meeting at Little Rock. More than 100 of the original 1,000 business and industrial executives and professional men to be recruited in the early years to the "community development" effort and to providing leadership in pushing to completion the projects scheduled in these cities.

The progress report made at the statewide meeting shows what people can do with the kind of leadership and cooperation in ten years. Arkansas has made the greatest economic growth in the nation. has led all states in per capita income increase. Hundreds of new industries, the and little have been established, thousands of new jobs created, millions of dollars in new private capital. In the past three years the Arkansas communities have held the class and have

Dale Carnegie

"HOW TO WIN FRIENDS and INFLUENCE PEOPLE"

MYRON WARREN, Xenia, Ohio, grew up on a farm. About half the time he was beclouded with worry. Not his own worry but the worry of the farmers; it might rain and the hay wasn't in. It might not rain, and the seedlings were up. Blackleg might get among the cattle. Insects might take over the crops. A little closer to the house, for the farmer's wife, the birds might get at her garden; a fox might steal in on the chickens. Yes, there's plenty to worry about during the "calm, peaceful, plentiful life of the farmer."

But even while very young, Myron began to wonder why the farmers worried about something over which they had no control? Why didn't they just work toward a good result and not think about rain and drought? Why didn't they just take care of the cattle? Usually Blackleg didn't attack them. They could take certain measures to ward off insects, and since that was all the control they had over them, why didn't they just take those measures and stop worrying until the insects actually got at the crops. The farmer's wife nearly always has a most successful garden, and every fall her chicken and egg money swell her bank account; so why, in Heaven's name, did she worry for fear good luck wouldn't come? God is in his Heaven!

His faith in God became his standby. If you didn't believe in Him, it didn't matter much what happened, anyway, and this faith and philosophy stood Myron in good stead when he was called upon to photograph a crash in which one of his good friends was killed. At first, he was nauseated when he saw particles of flesh here and there. Then he told himself, if the one thing that counted was the spirit, it had departed, and it couldn't matter much in what way this had happened. Too, he was helping prevent further such accidents if he made good pictures that would help determine the cause of the accident.

Economic Highlights

Happenings That Affect the Future of Every Individual — National and International Problems Inseparable From Local Welfare.

The Saturday Evening Post is running serially what it calls "One of the Great Books of Our Time." It is Whittaker Chambers' story of the amazing Alger Hiss trial, and the writer of dark events that led up to it. It is also a Book-of-the-Month club selection, and so is assured of an extraordinarily wide audience.

Most of the first installment of the Chambers series takes the form of a long letter to his children. In this, his main purpose is to try to tell what makes a communist of a man, and particularly a man of "Hiss" education, intelligence, achievement, and advantages. He wrote, "Much more than Alger Hiss or Whittaker Chambers was on trial in the trials of Alger Hiss."

Two faiths were on trial. . . . On a scale personal enough to be felt by all, but big enough to be symbolic, the two irreconcilable faiths of our time — Communism and Freedom — came to grips in the persons of two resolute men.

Mr. Chambers was himself an active communist for many years. He edited communist publications and worked for the underground. Today he hates communism, seeing in it "the focus of the concentrated evil of our time." He says: "How did it happen that this movement . . . became the immense force that now contests the mastery of mankind?" He replies: "The answer must be: Communism makes some profound appeal to the human mind. You will not find out what it is by calling communism names. That will not help much to explain why communism, whose horrors on a scale unparalleled in history are now public knowledge,

THIS WEEK IN Washington

THE DECISION of President Truman in his budget requests to spread or extend allocations for full employment into another year means that there will be more material for civilian goods than was to be permitted by the military in their time table for war production.

This decision of Truman means there will be some easing of an inflationary nature, that there will be more civilian goods to prevent upping of prices. This will mean more civilian production and, as a consequence more taxes, badly needed revenue. It will ease off some unemployment in production centers. The President's arbitrary decision also means he is convinced that war is not presently imminent. There are those who hold that because this is an election year, motives behind the move may be to keep business going and sound in as many lines as possible.

President Truman was the recipient of some criticism for his statement to withdrawing from the New Hampshire primary in which he referred to presidential primaries as "just eye-wash." However, the President is in favor of nation-wide primaries. The primaries for the selection of delegates to a national convention are in fact more or less "eye wash" since the delegates to many instances are tied to favorite sons and are not bound to vote for any particular candidate.

Despite appointment of Newbold Morris, widely known New York attorney, to conduct the administrative probe of "corruption" in government, starting with the justice department, the "probers" and the "sensitive" already are after Mr. Morris' strap and the whole thing likely may turn into a probe of the probe by some congressional committee before Mr. Morris can get his investigation under way. Republicans in the house are determined to prove Attorney General Howard McGrath guilty before Mr. Morris can do the same thing, if they can get away with it.

Theme of the Democrats in the coming campaign was victory in the recent Kansas City meeting of 10 midwestern states in which a resolution was unanimously adopted calling upon President Truman and Vice President Alben Barkley to run again. In a message to the meeting, President Truman stressed peace, progress and prosperity as the national aims of the party declaring, "If anybody is to play politics with the welfare of this country, it will not be the Democratic party." Senator Robert R. Kerr, of Oklahoma, who delivered the main address at the meeting, stressed the same theme. Senator Kerr also indicated he was a willing candidate in case the President decided not to run.

In a special message to the Congress, President Truman again renewed his bid for joint development of the St. Lawrence river seaway between this country and Canada. A week earlier in his budget message he had urged approval of the seaway as a "strategic necessity." In the special message he said, "It is inconceivable that Congress should allow any local or special interest to divert our country of its rightful place in the joint development of the waterway."

Canada has announced intention to "go it alone" if this Congress does not agree to the joint construction, which has been under consideration for a decade or more. The so-called "special interest" which have been the railroads and the eastern seaport authorities.

As of now, Senator Estes Kefauver is the only Democratic candidate officially announced for the presidential election, entering his name in the primaries in New Hampshire and Illinois. The New Hampshire primary shapes up as a three-way race for the delegates in that state, if delegates in all the GOP convention. Thus far, General Eisenhower, Senator Robert A. Taft and Harold A. Stassen are entries. General Douglas MacArthur had entered his name, but it was withdrawn according to information, in favor of Senator Taft. The New Hampshire primary is the first in the calendar, coming up March 11.

THE GREEDY TWINS

Across the Desk

ideas from other editors

COUNTRY EDITORS have a knack of capturing the spirit of the American scene in words that cannot be found in any other journalistic medium. For instance, this account of an American phenomenon appeared in the editorial columns of The Wright County Monitor, Clarion, Iowa:

"It seems that in these more modern times, waiters and waitresses at restaurants take down their orders in writing. But there was a time when they would call off a long line of stuff to the cook in the kitchen and he would proceed to make up the order from memory.

"So through the years I have always been fascinated by the special jargon which waiters have worked up in spelling their orders to the kitchen.

"According to one of the exchanges, one of the famous places is Shorty's Dugout in Madison, Wis., where an order of hash is relayed to the kitchen with the phrase, 'Sweep the floor for one.'

"Could you guess what this one means? 'Adam and Eve on a raft and a bucket of mud.' Very mystifying to the outsider, but very clear to the cook. It means 'two poached eggs on toast and a cup of black coffee.'

"Another descriptive line for the same order: 'Float two on planks, don't mess with the cow.'

"At another hash joint, the waiters called for this one: 'One side of slinkers, draw one in the dark, slap two cackles in the puss, and try the grunt to a crisp,' which meant two rolls, cup of black coffee, fried eggs turned over, and bacon well done. For years restaurants have designated meats as 'graveyard stew.'

"Torch sweaters have been much in the news of late. The editor of The Newville Record, Newville, Pa., had an editorial comment on the subject that will be echoed by small town editors across the nation:

"Although none of these so-called 'torch' sweaters have been located in Newville at this writing, there is a moral to this bar on traveling salesmen who are peddling them. Never buy anything from an unauthorized agent, especially on the streets.

"In other communities you have read where these sweaters were so highly inflammable that they burned in 40 seconds. So beware! We have many fine stores where reliable things are sold; let the peddler be!"

Issue of Our Times

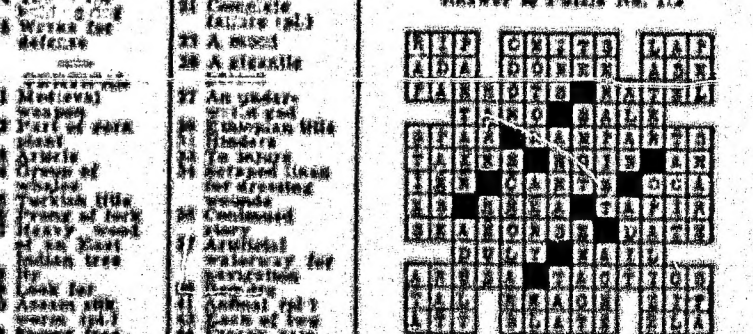

The North Canton Sun, North Canton, O., has named what it believes to be the issue of our times: "The ticklish international problem of peace on earth, good will to men, is still the basic issue of our times. There are those who say that it cannot be solved, that it must wait for a new generation. But one generation learns from its predecessor, and we have the solemn duty of training those who follow us to cherish the freedom of thought and inquiry which have been the chief source of Occidental civilization."

"I REMEMBER"

BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Mrs. Alice Hook, Eldorado Springs, Mo.: I remember when we didn't have any undergarments. When anyone died, his bereaved could have a casket made by a neighbor out of spare lumber in the barn loft.

From Mrs. Paul H. Wehfeld, Denver, Pa.: All homes used to have black kitchen ranges to lean the kitchen. When weather was mild we opened the door to the upstairs to slack the bedrooms a bit. Every parlor had a pot-bellied stove with nickel skirts. This was used only on weekends or when company was coming. On Saturdays, we rubbed both stoves with polish until they shone.

From the Old Cuss, Chicago: Hate to bother you with another item but I just remembered the ad I used to read for the garter affetto. "Woman's newest protector," they said, "snuggly sheathed on midday's garter and always ready for use." I don't know how effective they were, but I do know from personal experience that those long hampers the ladies used for defense were pretty effective.

From Bennett "Scotty" Wheeler, Brooklyn: One parlor necessity of the early 1900's was the spittoon, called a cuspidor by elegant folks who didn't spit. We had a china hand-painted one with posies which we always kept handy for guests. I broke it one day while cleaning it, accidentally. I told papa, and we never bought another.

Professor Walden Hightower, Los Angeles: Remember when parents used to urge their children to read O. Henry, because that author boasted that he had "never written a word which would bring the blush of shame to the dearest cheek?"

From Mary Karch, Lakeview, Ohio: I remember when old linotype pictures of not-too-well-known friends or relatives were cut in strips, wrapped in paper, and used as hair curlers.

From William Shaner, Lakeview, Ohio: I remember when we used corn meal to clean deep grime from our dirty hands, then finished the process by rubbing sheep tallow in to heal them. We pulled on a clean pair of old socks to keep the bedding clean.

From Lemuel Sterling, Mendon, Ohio: I remember watching the women card wool, using a handful at the time, carding it back and forth until they had a rolled thread it was remarkable how long it would be just from a handful of wool.

From Fred High, High, Ark.: I remember when oxen were worked as teams. Iron and steel was scarce and plows were made mostly of wood. I still have the metal parts of an old wood plow. The wood parts are rotted off. Even the wing was made of wood. Here is what appeared in the paper in Berryville, Ark., about 1883 in the oxen days: "Catchem, Yocum, Pullum and Hallum."

From Mrs. Elizabeth (Seales) West, Lynnville, Ind.: I remember many nights I was lulled to sleep by the hum of my mother's spinning wheel.

From Mrs. Edith Elsey Peill, Harrison, Ark.: Making molasses candy was a favorite occupation. Molasses were heated in an iron skillet and cooked until "just right," then cooled slightly. Then we buttered our hands and pulled the taffy until it was a pretty cream color.

Put Santa Claus in Deep Freeze

The seventh Truman budget has now been handed us. Like the other six, it is described by its sponsor as pared to the bone. Like the other six, it is overlaid with fat. Once again, there is no sense of responsibility at the White House for weeding out billions of unnecessary expenditures by civilian agencies of the Government.

While the Administration continues, even defiantly, its spend-thrift course, it exhorts the American people to save, to exercise self-denial, to go without things they are accustomed to. We have a right to expect Mr. Truman to take the lead. When he declines to make political sacrifices by curtailment or suspension of unnecessary activities, it is impertinence to ask citizens to make deep sacrifices in their daily living. "Do as I say, not do as I do," is his public fiscal policy.

When Presidents of the United States demand federal economy, they get it. They have adequate administrative machinery to enforce that demand upon subordinates, for, in addition to the 600-man Bureau of the Budget, each department and federal agency has well-staffed fiscal control offices. When a President says, "Estimate how much you need to get along with," the result is a Truman budget. When a President tells his bureau chiefs, "Decide what you can do without, and if you don't, it will be done for you," we will have frugality in Government.

Since Mr. Truman evades his responsibility to economize, there are four necessary steps for Congress and the country to take for elimination of unnecessary expenditure. FIRST STEP: Congress must re-examine legislative control over Government funds and property. Only about one-third of this year's expenditures came under its control. The rest consisted of appropriations for funds already wholly or partly obligated in previous years. They were contract obligations for construction or various forms of federal aid, or they were permanent appropriations becoming available after year under standing law and without new action by Congress.

For instance, Congress may have appropriated an initial $3 million for a reclamation project. The total cost may reach $270 million over the years. Or, to give a more invidious example, a group wanting something from the Government exerts pressure in behalf of a certain bill. "This is just an authorization," says the group. "Congress doesn't have to put up any money now." When the bill passes, the group returns and says "This project has been authorized; Congress is duty-bound to provide money for it."

Every authorization submitted to Congress should carry some estimate of its ultimate cost. Authorizations already made should be re-examined to determine what functions must be continued and what unnecessary ones can be suspended or legally abandoned in time of financial crisis. Santa Claus must be put away in deep freeze. "If Congress as a whole would take time out for a complete and intensive review of all existing legislation, it would amend or repeal some existing requirements," testified Elmer B. Staats, Assistant Director of the Budget. "Until Congress can make such review all outstanding project approvals have the force of law."

This review should be undertaken by the standing committees of both houses, the same legislative groups which approved the original authorizations. Education and Labor, Foreign Relations, Agriculture and the like. All in all, as I have indicated in recent years, some $7 billion might be saved by review and curtailment of outstanding but unneeded Congressional commitments.

For years, the Executive Branch has been scandalously over-staffed. Better work can be done by fewer people. Civilians, who now number 2,400,000 on the Government payroll, soon will be 3,000,000 at an annual cost of more than $10 billion. During each working day of 1951, the Government hired 4,000 new employees, on an average, and the daily quitting average of 1,200. I say without fear of successful contradiction that at least 500,000 present employees could be laid off without sacrifice and at a saving of nearly $2 billion. One sure way of terminating their services would by Sen. Harry F. Byrd of Virginia be for Congress to regain control of expenditure and abolish the unessential functions at which they are engaged.

SECOND STEP: A single package appropriation bill. When a dozen and more supply bills are introduced one by one over a period of six months, it is impossible for any member of Congress to have more than the foggiest idea of how much is being spent. One example of fiscal confusion arising from piecemeal appropriations is that as late as last November, there was no authentic compilation of all Congressional appropriations for the current year.

Last spring, 48 Senators of both political parties and comprising one-half the Senate's membership, sponsored a resolution calling for a Consolidated General Appropriation Bill. This resolution is the same as one which was passed by the Senate three years ago without a dissenting vote, and it was the result of pains-taking technical assistance from the Treasury Department, Bureau of the Budget, General Accounting Office and the Legislative Drafting Council. The House did not pass the original resolution. Its Appropriations Committee adopted a single package procedure of its own, but reversed itself last year and returned to the piecemeal supply bills.

When appropriations estimates of all federal departments and agencies are consolidated in a single bill, Congress and the country can have an over-all view of the total governmental outlay contemplated for the next fiscal year. With an omnibus appropriations measure, the relative worth of the claims of pressure groups for spending can be appraised in their relation to the whole national fiscal picture. THIRD STEP: Joint consideration of expenditures and revenues. "Budget" is a word with different meaning in American and British legislative procedures. An American Congressional budget is an appropriations measure. The British Parliament's budget is one of revenue and taxation. Actually, a budget has two sides—a spending side and a revenue side, and one should not be considered without the other. A prudent family first estimates its income before planning its outgo.

An improvident Government first announces what it will spend, then casts about for means of raising the money. Until revenue and expenditure are considered in relation to each other, Congress is unable with any informed competence to review, debate and decide the nation's fiscal policy.

FOURTH STEP: Unflinching insistence by the American people upon elimination of unnecessary governmental expenditure. The most important single document of the United States Government has the title, "The Federal Budget." Last year's edition was outfold 4 to 1 by a Department of Agriculture publication, "The Care and Feeding of Mules." There is no question that the American people favor elimination of unessential government expenditure. There is no question that, fundamentally, Congress, is of the same mind. But when Congress begins close, item-by-item examination of the federal budget, it fails to hear from its economy-minded constituents. Instead, the pressure comes from special groups which would benefit from the questionable items.

Now is the time for taxpayer groups, businessmen and investors and for labor organizations with pension funds affected by inflation to make themselves heard, and protest such avoidable expenditure. Until the people most affected by needless and wasteful federal spending and that comprises the bulk of our population—do more than talk about Government economy, Congress likewise will talk about economy in general, and fail to take a firm, watchful stand.

TODAY'S Meditation

THE WORLD'S MOST WIDELY USED DEVOTIONAL GUIDE

Thursday, February 21

Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven. (Matthew 18:3) Read Matthew 18:1-6.

ONE time as I was standing near my study window, which looks out on an alley, I saw three children, one little boy and two little girls, down below. One of the little girls, who was about the age of six, stopped for a moment and looked in the brick trash burner. Then I saw her reach, ever so carefully, over the dirty brick wall of the burner and bring forth a partly burned bouquet of flowers. Very carefully she separated the destroyed ones from the rest. When she had finally finished, she triumphantly held four dainty flowers arranged in her little hand, and then I heard her say, both to herself and also in the hearing of others, "Oh, aren't these beautiful!"

Christ saw in little children their ability to appreciate the good and the beautiful. We need not be astonished that He said, "Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall enter into the kingdom of heaven."

Prayer
Almighty God, we are grateful that little children can teach us of Thy path. May we know something of the full significance of a childlike spirit as we meet the challenges of this earthly life. In Christ's name we pray. Amen.

Thought For The Day
Only the converted, the childlike in heart, get into heaven.
Charles P. Knight (Kansas)

"No, thanks,
...I'm driving"

Smart man!

He keeps his car in safe driving condition... and he keeps himself in condition to drive it safely.

Are you one of those drivers who honestly believe that a drink or two can have no effect on your driving ability? The fact is that just one or two drinks is enough to make an otherwise safe driver a very real danger to himself and others.

The records are full of statistics proving that drinking drivers are three or four times more likely to have an accident than those who do not drink. You may be far from drunk—you may not even 'feel' your drink—but the unavoidable result of drinking even a small amount of alcohol is to impair your judgment and slow up your reactions. You may think you are just as 'quick on the trigger' after a drink or so, but medical science says you're not.

This impairment of your judgment and reactions may be measured in seconds, but split-seconds are ages in emergencies. So why court unnecessary danger? There's no point in arguing with alcoholic beverages... you can't win. You'll be wiser—and far safer—to pass up the drink and step into your car with the serene assurance that your driving is absolutely under your own control.

"Much of the misery caused by drinking drivers is due to the men and women who 'Wouldn't think of driving when I'm drunk.' To these thousands there is no danger in driving after one or two, or 'a few' drinks. It is they, not the stumbling drunk, who kill and cripple. Call it 'light,' 'feeling good,' or 'drunk,' it really doesn't matter. What does matter is this: your reaction, your perception, your attitude are all changed after one or two drinks."

"EASY DOES IT"
NEW COTTON FABRICS require different laundering methods than the old ones since they're treated with so many different trimmings and treatments. Learn what you can about the fabric before buying and save all instructions which would help you.

For best results, try to snip off a piece of fabric from an inside seam and launder this before doing the whole garment. You may learn something valuable that adds life to your garment.
Lukewarm water and mild suds are recommended for newer cottons rather than the hot suds. Special treatments such as ribbing, embossing and gold printing will not take to the hot water.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK
Frozen Vegetable Salad
(Serves 6)
3 cups peas
Sprig of mint
2 tablespoons chopped celery
1 sliced onion, cut fine
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons sugar
1 cup cream or evaporated milk, whipped
1/2 cup mayonnaise
Cook peas, mint and celery with onion in enough water to cover. If peas are fresh or frozen, until tender. If canned peas are used, cook for 10 minutes. Put all through sieve. Add salt and sugar to puree and chill. Fold in whipped cream or milk and mayonnaise. Freeze for 8 hours in automatic refrigerator, in freezing unit.

Wash colored garments separately, as they may run the first time or two when washed. Colors running out the first time does not mean the material is not color-fast. If it keeps running after repeated washing, it is not color-fast, of course.

Avoid twisting, wringing and rubbing motions in laundering as most new cottons have special finishes which may be creased by these methods.

On embossed cottons, smooth the garment into its original shape before hanging to dry. There should be no hot iron. Be careful when using a steam iron.

Compact and Efficient Economy Design Home From Small Homes Guide

3 Bedrooms, Minimum Space
Here is a small home design that really gives you much for your money—three bedrooms, dining area off the kitchen, full bathroom, plenty of closets, spacious living room with a fireplace. Open planning, a feature of many contemporary home designs, is in evidence in the kitchen-dining-living room arrangement. This gives each room a feeling of additional spaciousness, at the same time cuts construction costs to the bone.
This house for the minimum budget was planned for basementless construction. A large attic plus extra space in the garage gives the answer to storage problems. A small heating plant is sufficient to heat this house (floor area not counting garage comes to 922 sq. ft.) and provision for the furnace has been made in the space next to the fireplace.
Creator of the design is Architect W. A. Wollander. Information on blueprints and their cost can be obtained from the architect by writing to Small Homes Guide, 82 West Washington, Chicago 2, Illinois.

Elegant Chocolate Pie

There's something about a smooth chocolate filling set in flaky pastry shell and topped with a high hat meringue that is absolutely irresistible. But a tempting drizzle of melted chocolate is added anyway!

To have the pastry just as you desire it, fit it loosely into the pie pan. Gently pat out air pockets and then flute edge for a handsome effect. Prick the bottom and sides of the pastry with a fork to avoid puffing during baking. Allow shell to cool thoroughly before adding chocolate filling.

If you have egg yolks on hand for the filling, but no egg whites for meringue, use whipped cream as topping and garnish with chopped nuts.

CHOCOLATE PIE

Pastry
1 cup sifted enriched flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
Sift together flour and salt. Cut out about 1/4 inch thick. Line 9-inch pie pan. Prick with fork. Bake in hot oven (450°F) 8 to 12 minutes. Cool. Fill with Chocolate Filling.

Chocolate Filling
1/2 cup shortening
1 1/2 to 2 1/2 tablespoons cold water
2 squares unsweetened chocolate
1/2 cup light brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon enriched flour
2 eggs, separated
Melt chocolate over hot water. Add sugar, flour, egg yolks and milk. Cook over hot water until thick, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Add butter or margarine and vanilla extract. Pour into pastry shell. Cover with meringue made from the egg whites and granulated sugar. Bake in slow oven (325°F) about 15 minutes, until meringue is golden brown. Drizzle melted chocolate over top, if desired. Makes 1 9-inch pie.

Meringue
1/2 cups scalded milk
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
4 tablespoons granulated sugar
Inge made from the egg whites and granulated sugar. Bake in slow oven (325°F) about 15 minutes, until meringue is golden brown. Drizzle melted chocolate over top, if desired. Makes 1 9-inch pie.

Leroy F. Hussey of Augusta, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor.

Hussey, who also is chairman of the Governor's Executive Council, declared that if nominated and elected he will ask the next Legislature to authorize an agency for industrial construction similar to the Maine School Authority, which has application from more than 100 Maine communities for new school buildings.

The Augusta hardware merchant pointed out that many Southern States permit political subdivisions to issue tax-exempt bonds for industrial construction, which plan has greatly aided the South in taking industries away from the North.

Hussey affirmed his belief that Maine can and will solve its industrial problems, just as Maine people have overcome great crisis and obstacles throughout their history.

The gubernatorial candidate also asserted before several gatherings that he is running his own campaign, is under obligations to no one and has made no promises nor commitments of any kind. He decried campaign "smear" tactics and asserted that people who use them are "wholly irresponsible and totally unworthy of the confidence of the people of Maine."
